Chromecast icon missing android. How to cast from android chrome to chromecast. Does chromecast work on android. How does chromecast work with android phone. How to chromecast on android.

Bagikan Android Aplikasi > Produktivitas > Versi: 1.2 Diperbarui: 2021-06-04 00:53:40 UTC - QuickSettings Toggle is now available! - New widget! - New icons! «Cast Menu Widget Pro» Anda mungkin juga suka Operator penelusuran yang dapat digunakan dengan AppAgg That home screen of yours has looked a bit off since Material You took it over, right? Chrome is here to fix it right up. Today, Google is shipping out at least 3 widgets to the Chrome app in various sizes and with all sorts of functions. There's some other stuff to tell you about too. New Chrome widgets For those in need of some fun, the Chrome Dino game can be a legit shortcut on your home screen in widget form. As someone who has never played Chrome Dino, maybe this is my chance with it being this accessible. The other two widgets are more work than play, with search boxes set next to voice search, incognito, image search, and Dino shortcuts. It looks like Google is allowing some flexibility in sizing too. We have 2x2, 4x2, and 4x1 options shown off below. I'd imagine they will match the colors of your system, assuming you have Android 12. These widgets are rolling out now, so look in Google Play for an update to Chrome. Google Play Link: Chrome Other stuff! Chrome Journeys. Actions In addition to the new widgets, Chrome (on desktop to start) is getting a new history page called Chrome Journeys. Think of Journeys as a bunch of grouped items you would find from a specific topic you may have researched, like a trip or item to buy. Chrome will group relevant sites together to help you pick up where you left off, even if you did your own research days or weeks ago. Journeys will try to look at how you've interacted with a site or how many times you've visited one to pull up relevant info or make suggestions. Since there are going to be some who find this an incredible privacy nightmare, remember that you can always delete your history pretty easily. Also, Journeys are saved on devices (to start), not synced through your Google account. Google may open account-level syncing at some point, but not today. And finally, Google is releasing more Chrome Actions, which are actions you can do from Chrome's address bar. By typing in select phrases, you can quickly do things like jump into settings, view history, share a tab, or play that damn Dino game. Here is the list of new actions: "Manage settings" "Customize Chrome" "View your Chrome history" "Manage accessibility settings" "Share this tab" "Play Chrome Dino game" // Google To enable Chromecast, you need to follow the steps listed below. Table of contents Add dependency Add the dependency in your app level build.gradle and replace "x.x.x" with the latest version as noted below: dependencies { implementation 'com.flowplayer.android.player:flowplayer-chromecast:x.x.x' } Specify OptionsProvider Add the following in your AndroidManifest.xml: (Optional) Specify custom receiver The ChromecastOptionsProvider by default uses Flowplayer's Chromecast receiver application. If you wish to use your own receiver, then simply add it to your strings resource file with the following name: ID_OF_YOUR_CHROMECAST_RECEIVER Additionally, you can specify an array of namespaces by declaring an array with the following name in your strings resource file: YOUR_NAMESPACE Initialize ChromecastManager Before you can start using Chromecast, you need to initialize the ChromecastManager. A good place to do this is inside your Application class, override fun onCreate() { super.onCreate() ChromecastManager.initialize(this) } Add a Chromecast button To allow users to select a Chromecast device and play their media on it, you need to add a Chromecast button to your application. You can add this either to your ActionBar or anywhere inside your view's layout. Add a Chromecast button to the ActionBar First, add the following menu item to your Activity's menu layout: Then use ChromecastManager to bind the button with Chromecast. Add the following line inside onCreateOptionsMenu: override fun onCreateOptionsMenu(menu: Menu): Boolean { inflater.inflate(R.menu.menu_activity_player, menu) // Bind the button with Chromecast. ChromecastManager.getInstance().setMediaRouteButton(this, menu, R.id.media_route_menu_item) ... return true } Add a Chromecast button to the layout First, add the button to the layout: Then use ChromecastManager to bind the button with Chromecast. Add the following line inside onCreate: val mediaRouteButton = findViewById(R.id.media_route_button) // Bind the button with Chromecast. CastManager.getInstance().setMediaRouteButton(this, mediaRouteButton) Connect ChromecastPlayer with FlowplayerView Finally, you need to connect ChromecastPlayer with FlowplayerView in order for the media to be played on the appropriate player (Chromecast or local) depending on whether there is a Chromecast session established. // Get Chromecast player instance val chromecastMediaPlayer = ChromecastPlayer.getInstance(this) // Pass the chromecast player to the flowplayerView flowplayerView.setChromecastMediaPlayer(chromecastMediaPlayer) Control ChromecastPlayer's playback If you don't wish to manually control ChromecastPlayer's playback, you can simply add a PlayerControlView to your layout and pass it to the ChromecastPlayer. First add the control view: Then pass it to the player: val chromecastControlView = findViewById(R.id.cast_control_view) chromecastMediaPlayer.setControlView(chromecastControlView) For more information on how to customize the PlayerControlView read the API reference. Control playback using Mini and Expanded Controllers Mini and Expanded Controllers are parts of the Cast UX Widgets that enable you to control ChromecastPlayer playback and multiple subtitle, audio, and video tracks that a media may contain. For a basic usage of these two widgets, follow the next steps: Subclass abstract class ExpandedControllerActivity and declare your activity in your app's manifest, override fun onCreateOptionsMenu(menu: Menu): Boolean { super.onCreateOptionsMenu(menu) inflater.inflate(R.menu.menu_activity_player, menu) CastButtonFactory.setUpMediaRouteButton(this, menu, R.id.media_route_menu_item) return true } ... Extend ChromecastOptionsProvider class and override getCastMediaOptions function, in order to add your activity as the expanded controller of your sender app, and replace ChromecastOptionsProvider with your class in the of your AndroidManifest.xml, override fun getCastMediaOptions(): CastMediaOptions? { val notificationOptions = NotificationOptions.Builder().setTargetActivityClassName(ExpandedControlsActivity::class.java.name).build() return CastMediaOptions.Builder()

.setNotificationOptions(notificationOptions).setExpandedControllerActivityClassName(ExpandedControlsActivity::class.java.name).build() } Add a mini controller to your sender app, simply by adding MiniControllerFragment to your layout. For more information on how to customize Cast UX Widgets UI read API reference. Continuing with its redesigning spree Google has now dropped the Material you design for Google Drive. The cloud storage app for tablets gets the widgets. Interestingly, the new app version number for both smartphones and the tablets is same. So far the new material design for Google Drive is only visible on tablets. Recently, Google also announces Lock Screen Widgets for iOS 16. Google Drive circle widget for Android Tablets On Android smartphones, only two widgets are available as of now. One is x-shaped with quick access icons for adding new documents, file uploading, search files, and camera upload. The second widget contains the list of documents you recently accessed. Google Drive app with version 2.22.357.1 brings along a circular widget. Six circular buttons designating the various functions of Google Drive surround the app icon. All these icons are collectively present inside a spherical boundary. It pretty much resembles that of a 6-chambered revolver. Mostly, the quick access icons represent the upload from the camera, folder upload, and launch spreadsheet actions. To step up to the latest version of Google Drive on your tab and phone, visit the Play Store app. Tap on the avatar of your google account. Then tap Manage Apps & Device. Under that Tap on Updates Available. If Google Drive is present among the apps waiting for installing a new update, go ahead and tap on Update. It should take a few seconds to install. Source
